

FULL SELF
Chad Moore - chad@chadmoore.net
Apr 3, 2023 (version 007)

Lights up on Jane, Bob, and Jackson at the office water cooler.

JANE

Hey Bob, we're supposed to bring our full selves to work now?

BOB

Yes that's the new policy, Jane. We in HR think that the better we know each other's real authentic selves, the better we will work together!

JANE

Well, are you sure you want to know about us to that level? Some folks around here have some questionable morales.

BOB

Uh, what do you mean?

JANE

I'll show you. Hey Jackson, HR actually wants us to be really truthful about ourselves now.

JACKSON

OK Bob, remember when I used a sick day last Thursday? I was sick of work, so I got real high and played Playstation all day.

BOB

Thank you for your honesty. We strive to be a workplace where we can openly discuss ourselves. We have programs to assist with all of life's stressors.

JANE

Stressors, huh? I slept with my sisters fiancé. On their wedding day. In the church. You got a program for that?

BOB

Thank you for sharing that. I can see how that can be stressful for your family.

(MORE)

BOB (CONT'D)

I can point you to some relationship management materials, Jane.

JACKSON

I'm not so sure you have materials for everything Bob.

BOB

We've been quite thorough. Please share, so that we can assist.

JACKSON

Last weekend, me and Jane were tripping balls and broke into the zoo. We kidnapped a chimpanzee, and cooked it over an open fire in the woods.

JANE

Delicious. Who knew?

BOB

(gulps) Oh, I see. Thank you both for sharing your full selves. But maybe we should slow this down and reconsider this policy.

JANE

No materials for that one, eh Bob?

BOB

No. (beat) But since we're talking questionable morales, I'd like to share my full self with you both. Meet me in the back of my van?

Bob, Jackson, and Jane begin to exit eagerly.

Blackout